

WASHINGTON FAMILY.

"The Glorious Five Hundred" and Others of Today.

Some Interesting Genealogical Facts Not Generally Known Concerning the Descendants of the Father of His Country.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Among the many things which would astonish George Washington should he come to life again would be the number of "lineal descendants" he managed to leave behind him, in spite of the fact that he died childless.

And yet, as remarked, the national hero passed away leaving no offspring.

Another thing that would greatly astonish the general would be the number of George Washingtons, who are flourishing in all parts of the land, even including the jails.

From Washington's sister Betty alone were born six children, one of whom, also named Betty, bore sixteen children to her husband, Charles Carter. As there was issue from the other five of Betty's children it is plain that this single branch in the course of a hundred years may well have produced scores of families all over the country.

Washington had also three brothers, Samuel, John Augustine and Charles, and two half brothers, Lawrence and Augustine. These all left issue.

Washington's mother, who married his cousin, Hannah Ball. These claimants have a strong argument in their favor in the fact that George Washington's youngest brother Charles married into the Ball family, so that the descendants today have a three-fold claim to the blood of the father of his country.

Foremost among those who trace their ancestry back in this channel is Colonel Ebenezer Burgess Ball, whose home is in Washington and who bears the most striking resemblance to his illustrious ancestor, Colonel Ball, in spite of his seventy-six years, carries himself with military bearing, stands over six feet, and with his snow white hair and dignified manner impresses one as worthy of the name he cherishes. Seen in profile, his features are almost an exact reproduction of the familiar head of Washington en-

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Mantell in "Monbars" and "The Face in the Moonlight."

Gossip of Plays, Actors and Actresses—Preparations for the Next Dramatic Season.

Mr. Robert Mantell, an actor who by force of a strong personality and the exercise of fine talents has established himself in the enduring favor of American play-goers, will appear at the Salt Lake theatre tomorrow evening in the beautiful romantic drama of "Monbars," a play that has sustained successfully the test of criticism of the entire press of the country and won for Mantell the hearty applause and endorsement of crowded audiences from Maine to California. Those who remember his appearance in this play in this city four years since will heartily endorse the above, for Mantell is a man who, once seen, is not easily forgotten. His admirers claim that he easily outtrunks all other actors now before the public who appear in the romantic roles. There is an individuality possessed by this man which amounts to magnetism. United to his genius as an actor he has a voice and figure almost perfect. He may be certain of a warm reception from his Salt Lake friends. Tuesday evening will be presented "The Face in the Moonlight," Mr. Mantell assuming a double role.

Planquette's new opera, "The Talisman," as produced in New York, is not well spoken of by the press.

Miss Georgia Cayvan is going to Alaska and will return in time to join the Lyceum company on its Pacific tour in August.

At present New York boasts of no less than four roof gardens, with the prospect of more in the future. The craze has spread to St. Louis.

Baltimore capitalists are subscribing money for the building of a new theatre in the business part of the Monumental city to cost $150,000.

Mrs. Jessie Bartlett-Davis is out of an operatic job, and is undecided whether to return to the footlights or to take a season off for quietude and rest in private life.

Notwithstanding many prognostications to the contrary on account of the superior attraction of the World's fair, the Chicago theatres are reported to be doing a splendid business.

Mrs. Leslie Carter returns to the stage in autumn, when she will appear as a young southern girl in "Heart of Maryland," a new romantic drama written for her by David Belasco.

Manager Hoyt has at last decided to withdraw "A Trip to Chinatown," which has now been running nearly two years at Madison Square theatre. The date of closing will be the 29th inst.

The stage-artist of Daly's new London theatre is a delight. It is made of rose crimson silk, brocaded with gold and silver threads, and is a fine example of English weaving. The cost is $5,000.

Mr. Denham Thompson has announced that he will not appear on the stage next season. He and Mr. George Rier, the author of "The Old Homestead," will collaborate on a new "Hayseed" drama.

Mrs. John Drew, McKee Rankin, Charles Erin Verner, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew and Owen Fawcett will be in one company next season. They will play "The Rivals" and "The Road to Ruin." E. G. Stone is to manage the tour.

Mr. William Gillette, who has been south most of the winter, is now in Hartford, Conn., at work on a play of American life. This is the first drama Mr. Gillette has attempted since he wrote "Held by the Enemy." Mr. Gillette may star again in comedy next season.

Tragedian Thomas W. Keene has engaged the Misses Emma and Henrietta Vaders for his company next season. The former has been the leading actress with Joseph Jefferson for several years.

Mr. Keene will revive "Home and Juliet" next autumn, appearing as Mercutio.

As a result of the popularity of vaudeville performances, Mr. James A. Reilly, the star of J. K. Emmet's play, "A German Soldier," has decided during next season to introduce specialty performers instead of orchestral interludes between the acts, thus making the performance a continuous one.

Charles Frohman closed his first season of the Empire theatre, New York City, Saturday night, June 24. During the entire season only one play was presented, "The Girl I Left Behind Me," which was 204 nights. The stock company which is now appearing in this drama in Chicago at the Schiller theatre will play it there all summer.

Henry Irving and Ellen Terry are to leave England on the 23d of July for a short American tour. They are to take a holiday in Canada, and then go direct to San Francisco via Vancouver. These stars of the stage have not announced farewell tours in the manner of the divine Sarah, but they contemplate an eight months' visit. The plays they will appear in have all been reproduced at the Lyceum recently for the sake of drilling the company thoroughly.
